Half of Evacuated 100,000 Return Home

State Begins Road to Recovery From Floods

By United Press International
More than half of the estimated 100,000 persons evacuated at the height of New York State's record flood were back in their homes today as the full impact of the tragedy began to emerge from the receding waters.

At least 23 persons were known dead and officials said the figure could go higher as other areas became accessible and searches were completed. The injury toll was more than 50 and property damage to private and public buildings, roads and other facilities was in the hundreds of millions of dollars following the five days of flooding and destruction.

Much of the damage and casualties were in the Southern Tier around Corning, Elmira and Painted Post, but death and destruction also were counted in southwestern New York and in pockets of the central part of the state.

(Flood-swollen streams throughout Ulster County stayed within their banks today, and the danger of immediate local flooding has apparently passed. Springtown Road in New Paltz, closed when the Wallkill River overflowed its banks last week, was reopened to traffic Sunday, and authorities also reported that Route 209 in Accord and Creek Locks Road in Eddyville, two other major trouble spots are now high and dry. Flood watchers, however are keeping close tabs on the Esopus, Sawkill and Rondout Creeks and the Wallkill River, as long as the threat of continued rain remains.)

President Nixon declared flooded sections a disaster area and state officials moved to bring relief to the hard hit areas where communications, travel, sanitary facilities and food and water supplies were bordering on the chaotic.

Hundreds of businesses, including some major concerns such as the Corning Glass Works, were badly damaged and it appeared that many persons would be without jobs temporarily while repairs were being made.

Meanwhile, the National Weather Service noted that tropical storm Agnes, which was responsible for the deluge that triggered the massive flooding, had largely broken up although some showers were still in the offing. The agency said, however, that no additional heavy rains were in sight immediately.

A spokesman for the Department of Transportation's Natural Disaster branch said that the 100,000 persons were evacuated from 13 counties in the southwestern, Southern Tier and central parts of the state. The spokesman said more than half had returned to their homes.

The death toll climbed to 23 Sunday when a helicopter being used to inspect flood damage in western New York crashed near Hornell, killing the pilot and two civilian employees of the Corps of Engineers.

In Corning, 16 bodies had been recovered as the waters from the Chemung River began to return to the banks. Four persons were killed last Thursday near Wellsville.

The latest evacuation was in Auburn and the village of Port Byron where officials ordered clearing Sunday afternoon because of concern that a dam at the northern end of Owasco Lake might rupture. The evacuation was halted temporarily after a Corps of Engineers inspector said there was no imminent danger of the dam's collapsing.

Meanwhile, the worst flooding in U. S. history was receding today and the tropical storm that caused it had died out. But hundreds of thousands of Eastern residents still waited to learn when they could return home.

Tropical storm Agnes left at least 122 persons dead, most of them from flooding in northeastern states, and damage approaching $2 billion.

Agnes left a few squalls Sunday before dying out over Canada where it caused no serious damage.

About 145,000 persons in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., stayed in emergency shelters. Although the waters of the Susquehanna River finally crested and began receding Sunday, the flood left behind a thick and slimy buildup of mud. Wilkes-Barre's water supply was contaminated and the city was without telephone service.

About 8,500 persons could not return to their homes in the Pennsylvania capital of Harrisburg. Debris still littered the streets, although the water level was falling.

"We're going to find more bodies now that the water is receding," said Jim Cox of the state police headquarters in Harrisburg.

CARRYING DRINKING WATER — Two Pottstown, Pa. flood victims carry potable drinking water up the front steps of their home after filling a container from one of several water trucks brought to the area by authorities. The town's water treatment plant was put out of commission by flood waters and reservoir levels began dropping very low. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

RETURNING HOME — With the flood level dropping slowly but surely, people are starting to return to their homes in Bellaire, Ohio. Over 150 families were evacuated as rains from tropical storm Agnes send the Ohio river surging out its banks. The river was between 8 to 22 feet over flood stage. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Rocky Tours Devastated Areas

By United Press International
Governor Rockefeller reportedly was in the Southwest today resuming a flood - interrupted vacation with his family after a half - day tour of the hardest hit areas of flood - wracked New York State.

Rockefeller flew into Rochester Saturday from the Southwest, where he had begun the week's vacation the day before. Accompanied by Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits, state officials and three newsmen, Rockefeller set out by helicopter to observe the havoc wrought by Tropical Storm Agnes.

In Elmira, the governor's last stop before enplaning to return to his vacation, he met scores of refugees in a gymnasium at the Elmira High School, one of several centers set up there to house flood victims.

"I'm sorry, I'm sorry. We'll try to help," the governor kept saying as he passed among the temporary residents of the gym.

Elmira Mayor Edward T. Lagonegro told Rockefeller that "the people want to go back to their homes, but we can't let them until we know the area is safe."

Rockefeller, his neat camel-colored raincoat in sharp contrast to the haggard appearing Lagonegro's splattered sport coat, slacks and muddy shoes replied:

"We will see to your immediate needs through Civil Defense and other agencies. But there are many long - range questions we still have to answer. Nobody thought this could happen, but here we are."

As Rockefeller went from person to person in the gym shaking hands, he kept murmuring "I'm sorry, I'm sorry. We'll try to help."

A middle - aged woman, tears streaming down her face, said "We got out. Thank God we got out. But we lost everything. Now we want to go home."

The governor answered: "We'll help you."

"There is a problem where money is concerned," Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland, said. "I think this is the biggest disaster that has ever hit this country."

Mandel said the $92 million federal emergency fund was "only ten per cent of what will be needed in Pennsylvania alone."

Attending the meeting with Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp in this devastated state capital were Mandel, Govs. William T. Cahill, of New Jersey, Linwood Holton of Virginia, Russell W. Peterson of Delaware and a representative of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. West Virginia Gov. Arch Moore did not attend.

Accused of 12 Break-ins

Burglaries...Man, Two Youths Arrested

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON
The first major break in the police investigation of a wave of burglaries that plagued authorities in the area in recent months came Sunday when a 23-year-old Saugerties man was arrested on 12 counts of burglary third degree.

Douglas Perry, of Route 4, Box 159, Town of Saugerties, also was cited for two counts of endangering the welfare of a minor.

The latter charges, police said, involved two boys — aged 14 and 15 — who Police Chief Julius Glassman said allegedly took part in the 12 break-ins with Perry.

The boys either acted as lookouts at the scene of the crimes and/or allegedly participated in them, the chief charged. The juveniles face action in Family Court.

The weekend arrests came in the wake of a two-part series on burglaries published in The Daily Freeman last week.

It was learned today that one of the 12 places allegedly burglarized by the trio was the home of Chief Glassman on Clifton Avenue which was entered through a forced door on June 13, after two unsuccessful attempts had been made to break in through other means.

Glassman said more arrests are anticipated as the probe continues.

None of the loot taken in the rash of burglaries has been recovered, the chief noted.

The arrests, police said, also solved a burglary at the Dargan Garage in Saugerties, and a burglary at the Quonst Garage on Route 9W, Town of Ulster, the latter part of April, according to Glassman. Police in those communities have been notified and additional charges are expected to be filed against the accused.

According to Glassman the counts filed against Perry relating to endangering welfare of minors involved alleged sexual acts with the two juveniles.

The chief credited Detective Joseph Feraca with the investigation that resulted in the three arrests. Feraca took Perry and the boys in custody with the aid of Detective Curtis Vandemark, police said. Feraca will receive an official commendation for "excellent police work," the chief commented.

In addition to the burglary at the Glassman residence, other break-ins charged against Perry and the boys and the dates of each were reported as:

May 22 the Dairy Queen store on Albany Avenue, the Citgo Service Station on Albany Avenue the following night; Goldfarb's Gas Station, Broadway May 23 and 24; Earl's Hot Weiner shop, Broadway, May 25; Tops Drive-in Cleaners, Albany Avenue, May 27; Bahl's Scrap Yard on Abel Street, June 9; Royal Tire Service, Railroad Avenue, May 30; Terri's Grocery, Wall Street, June 14; a residence at 38 Klingsburg Avenue June 2, and a Chapel Street residence late in May.

Rockefeller's chief of staff, Maj. Gen. John Baker, said that troops would cordon off the area but that they had no civil arrest authority.

Rockefeller said he was hesitant to send armed troops into the college.

Meanwhile, in Harrisburg, the governors of five Eastern states ravaged by flooding from tropical storm Agnes Sunday urged Congress to appropriate more funds for disaster aid.

McGovern...1st Ballot Assured

WASHINGTON (AP) — An undetermined number of uncommitted black delegates to the Democratic National Convention were pledged today to Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D. The head of the congressional black caucus said the number appears to insure McGovern a first-ballot nomination.

"We are confident that our bloc of votes will assure Sen. McGovern the nomination on the first ballot," said Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, chairman of the caucus.

The action followed several days of negotiations between McGovern's staff and black groups, including the caucus of the National Black Political Convention.

"Sen. McGovern has pledged to support and work for the goals outlined in the Bill of Rights of the Congressional Black Caucus," Stokes said at a news conference. "He has pledged to fight with us for full citizenship and equality of opportunity for all citizens in every sector of our national life."

"We shall...work in our own communities and all across the land to bring together the political support needed to assure the election of Sen. McGovern."

Stokes said one of the group's immediate goals is to have nine million blacks registered "and ready to march" in November. Before Sunday, the McGovern office was claiming first-ballot support from 1,413 delegates.

However, The Associated Press poll gave McGovern 1,335.15 as of Sunday night.

In a separate move also related to black delegates, McGovern's chief rival, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, met Sunday with black Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York. Aides of Mrs. Chisholm and the Minnesota senator planned their own news conference for later today.

The McGovern Southern trip, which has been in the planning stages at least since the first week of June, includes appearances in Oklahoma City and San Antonio, Tex., today. Tuesday he will be in Little Rock, Ark., and Atlanta and Wednesday in Columbia, S.C., and, tentatively, Richmond, Va.

"Unity" is theme at meeting of New York State Democratic Committee. Story on page 3.

The South generally is considered McGovern's weakest section. Southern Democratic governors at the National Governors' Conference in Houston early in June said McGovern would lose their states to President Nixon.

Meanwhile, in Washington, first draft planks of the Democratic 1972 platform called today for "an immediate and complete withdrawal of all U.S. forces in Indochina" and took a middleground stand on the hot domestic issue of racial school busing.

Both planks, and perhaps as many as a dozen others, headed into floor fights as the full 150-member drafting committee convened for a two-day session open to press and public.

Challenges were expected from both right and left on the eight-plank platform drafted by a 15-member drafting subcommittee which itself could not agree on a defense spending plank.

It sent two versions to the floor, one demanding a strong military stance to deter aggressors and keep the confidence of allies, the other suggesting that cutbacks should be undertaken.

The Vietnam plank denounced President Nixon's failure to make good on his 4-year-old promise of peace and declared that his Vietnamization program has been proved a delusion.

Shultz, who heads Nixon's Cost of Living Council, offered little optimism that the action would result in reduced prices. The main objective, he said, is to stabilize meat prices by eliminating repeated surges at the wholesale level.

meat prices, saying it could take weeks or months for any increase in imports to be felt in the United States.

rest of 1972 "may not fully solve the problem," Nixon said in a statement. "Further measures will be taken as necessary and appropriate."

Most of the imported meat is lower cost cuts which go into processed products such as hamburger, hot dogs, salami and sausages.

Officials questioned whether the decision would have an immediate impact on surging

Nixon Lifts Meat Restrictions To Combat Zooming Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon lifted all quota restrictions on meat imports today "in an effort to remedy a short-term shortage" and curb rising meat prices.

But Nixon ruled out a freeze on meat and other food prices. Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz said at a White House news conference where Nixon's decision was announced.

Kings County Bolts Convention

State Democrats on 'Unity' Drive . . . Again

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — One of the words most frequently heard at the Democratic State Committee meeting last week-end was "unity." But the members had different ways of illustrating what they meant.

Among the different versions of "unity" on display at Saturday's meeting at Niagara Falls was the Kings County delegation's absence from the convention floor during selection of the 28 at-large delegates to round out New York's representation at the national convention.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, already within reach of the presidential nomination on the first ballot, picked up 25 of the at-large delegates, plus support from the new national committeeman and committeewoman, to swell his share of New York's 278 votes to 257.

Brooklyn Democratic Leader Meade Esposito took his Kings County delegation into another room at the hotel and prepared a lengthy statement damning those who he said were trying to undermine "the spirit of cooperation" that everyone had promised.

"For the first time in many years a national committeeman and national committeewoman were unanimously selected," the statement said.

Former State Sen. Basil Patterson and Tompkins County Democratic Chairman Jean Angell were chosen to fill the national committee positions in an election that lasted about as long as it took to introduce them.

Esposito's statement said, "It was our hope that the same spirit of cooperation would have resulted in the selection of a truly representative body of delegates at-large."

The Kings County delegation felt that the at-large members were not "selected in a democratic process nor were they selected in a spirit of cooperation and conciliatory effort that was previously made."

Esposito later explained that the Brooklyn leaders didn't like the way McGovern's state campaign director, Richard C. Wade, took part in selection of the at-large delegates.

"I put the blame squarely on the shoulders of Dick Wade," Esposito said. He added that Wade told the committee named to screen a list of about 300 potential at-large delegates that McGovern's forces "couldn't trust the delegates we put forth."

Esposito said the Brooklyn Democrats would work to elect a Democrat as president, but would be a major issue at the national convention and "very or get out of the party."

"We do not intend to contribute to this divisiveness. We do not intend to cause confusion and dissension."

Another illustration of the Democratic party's brand of "unity" was Queens party leader Matthew Troy's call for the convention to unite behind his move to throw New York City Mayor John Lindsay off the delegation to the national convention.

Troy, a city councilman and frequent critic of Lindsay, suggested that one of the three uncommitted delegates should be a woman.

However, State Chairman Joseph Crangle, who unexpectedly endorsed McGovern the night before, came to Lindsay's defense, saying urban problems telling the NDC to fall into line or get out of the party.

few fully understand these problems except the mayor of the City of New York."

Troy's motion was defeated on a voice vote.

State party treasurer Abe Hirschfield made an unusual plea for unity—to throw the New Democratic Coalition out of the party if it doesn't start contributing to support the state party.

In a treasurer's report that was virtually ignored because of several caucuses going on among small groups in the meeting room, Hirschfield painted a bleak picture of the party's finances, and said the NDC had contributed nothing.

He suggested that the state committee adopt a resolution

Stratton Hopes to Block Extension of Capitol

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-Amherst, is seeking aid from his fellow House members in blocking a proposed $70 million extension of the West Front of the U.S. Capitol.

Stratton, charging the project was too costly and unnecessary, Sunday announced he would attempt to enlist support for a Senate-approved amendment which would prohibit spending federal money for such projects without the approval of both houses of Congress.

He said in a statement that $2 million currently earmarked for planning of such an extension actually would be used for demolition and preliminary digging unless the Senate prohibition is approved.

Debate on the future of the front, the last visible part of the original 1800 Capitol building was expected to occur later this week. Controversy over extension of the building has been going on for several years.

Stratton said that in 1969 Congress was told the building was in imminent danger of collapse and could only be saved by a four-acre extension. He said a $200,000 engineering study by a prestigious firm erased that contention, and that the study was "dramatically reaffirmed" by the Capitol bombing last year.

He added that restoration of the west front, instead of extension, would cost an estimated $15 million to $20 million.

And, he said the planned extension would be "a cheap imitation of the east front, crammed with all kinds of restaurants and hideaway offices."

Stratton said the cost figures come out to $368 a square foot for an extension, much higher than the new FBI building in downtown Washington, which has a cost estimated at $68 a square foot.

"Is this really the sort of thing we want to do in an election year?" he asked.

Hijacker, $502 Thousand Objects of Massive Manhunt

PERU, Ind. (UPI)—A hijacker who bailed out of a jetliner with $502,000 ransom remained the object of an intensive manhunt today, even though authorities did not know if he was still in the sparsely populated area.

Search teams on foot, on horseback and in boats and helicopters combed an area southeast of Peru but found no trace of the man, money or parachute.

Sgt. John Gaylor, commander of the state police post, said reports of the hijacker hitchhiking a ride or otherwise getting checked out and the results were negative.

"But we can't be 100 per cent certain he's still around here," Gaylor said. "However, on the assumption he's still here, the search is continuing and we're looking for the subject, dead or alive."

James F. Martin, special agent in charge of the FBI at Indianapolis, assumed command of the search, which utilized a combination of police officer, joined the manhunt Sunday to search a wooded state recreation area near the Mississinewa Reservoir. Most of the 150 searchers, however, were on foot.

Some volunteer horseback riders, accompanied by a state

Conservation officers patrolled the reservoir, looking for signs of the hijacker, while state police helicopters scoured the area from above.

Although it was possible the hijacker came down in the 12,830-acre reservoir, officers ruled out dragging operations as impractical. Instead, the conservation officers manned boats on the waters of the huge, man-made lake.

Israeli Airport Massacre: 28th Victim Recorded

TEL AVIV (AP) — The death toll in the May 30 Tel Aviv airport massacre has risen to 28 with the death of another Israeli, hospital authorities announced Sunday.

The victim, identified as Zvi Gutman, 51, was hospitalized in critical condition after the shooting and died Saturday. Those dead in the raid were 16 Puerto Rican tourists, a Canadian woman, nine Israelis and two of the three Japanese gunmen.

The third, Kozo Okamoto, threw a tantrum in his jail cell and smashed a wooden plank with a karate chop shortly before he was to attend a hearing of testimony about the massacre, the newspaper Yediot Aharonot reported Sunday.

Extra Day For Hearings In Gardiner

GARDINER — The largest turnout in the town's history forced the Town of Gardiner Assessment Review Board to continue grievance hearing for an extra day.

Supervisor George Majestic termed the 262 grievances heard as the largest number ever for the town, which he has headed since 1958.

Wary board members adjourned the hearings at the close of Grievance Day, Tuesday, and reconvened again at 3 p.m. Wednesday with the announced intention of staying on the job until everyone had been heard. It took them until 10 p.m. to complete their mission.

Sentences Are Issued

KINGSTON — Two five-year probationary sentences were given in County Court Thursday by Judge Raymond J. Mino, one to Bruce Finch of Kingston and the other to Bradley Oliver of Mountain Home, Pa.

Finch previously pleaded guilty Nov. 10, 1971 to burglary in the third degree, five counts. He was arrested for allegedly entering a number of private properties. One condition of his probation is that he enter the Renaissance Drug Rehabilitation Program, Judge Mino said.

Finch's lawyer, Robert Anthony, making a statement relevant to sentencing, said that the defendants' acts of last summer, when he was arrested were the result of his addiction to narcotic drugs. Anthony suggested that he was driven to crimes for his desire for heroin.

Oliver was also sentenced to five years probation after having pleaded guilty to burglary in the third degree in November, 1971.

He was arrested in connection with the burglarizing of the Ulster County Historical Museum on Rt. 209 in Marbletown last year.

Town Board To Appoint Council

ROSENDALE — The Rosendale Town Board will meet June 28 to appoint a Narcotics Guidance Council that will work in conjunction with already established councils in the Towns of Marbletown and Rochester.

Supervisor Gerard Defelicio said recently that the decision to form the council was reached at a meeting between the Town Board, interested residents, and York State Narcotics Control Commission.

The three townships will combine efforts to form a council that will cover the entire Rondout Valley area. Defelicio said the individual councils will apply for state funding independently, but will conduct their programs jointly.

Defelicio said the Rosendale unit will emphasize prevention and education. "It's not so much that we think there is a rampant drug problem in the Town of Rosendale," he said, "but there is a need for education."

Rosendale's council will consist of seven members to be appointed by the Town Board.

Korvette Chain Cited for Sale Of Pollutants

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Five E. J. Korvette stores—four in the New York metropolitan area and one in Albany—have been charged with sales of detergents containing more than twice the legal limit of phosphates, the Department of Environmental Conservation announced today.

A total of 258 boxes of Spring detergent—a private label product for automatic dish washers—were ordered removed from Korvette shelves after conservation officers bought one package in each store, the department said.

The five violators are subject to a maximum penalty of $2,500 each, plus an additional penalty of $2,500 for each individual box of detergent offered for sale.

The stores were also charged with selling improperly labeled items. Some of the detergent products had the phosphate contents listed on the bottom of the package—the only place on the container where the law forbids such listings.

Hearings on the case have been scheduled for June 27, the department said.

The law limiting the amount of phosphates permitted in household cleaners went into effect Jan. 1, 1972 and was followed by a statewide series of inspections and seizures of banned detergents.

High Court Delays Ruling On Abortion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today put off for another year a judgment on the anti-abortion laws of Texas and Georgia.

Evidently closely divided, the justices announced they would hear argument again next term on the question of whether it is unconstitutional for government to interfere with women's control over their own bodies.

At stake are the laws in these and other states that restrict physicians in performing therapeutic abortions.

Common Council To Meet July 10

KINGSTON — The Common Council will meet in regular session on July 10, a Monday, instead of on the first Tuesday of the month, July 4 is a holiday.

City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco announced that city hall will be open on Monday, July 3 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. but will be closed all day on Independence Day, Summer hours (9-4) begin on July 1 at city hall and will end on the last day of August.

OUR ENERGY CRISIS
PART 4

In our series of messages during the last three weeks, we've been using the word crisis for a good reason. A crisis is a turning point. That is exactly where we are today. Because it will take years to increase fuel production, we have passed the point where we can greatly increase domestic energy supplies in the middle seventies, and it may be too late to do much about the late seventies. We still have an opportunity, however, to do something about the decade of the eighties and thereafter. But the next few years will be critical.

Until recently, the public has been unaware of the growing energy shortage. But the signs have been with us for some time.

Our domestic oil production is insufficient to meet rising demands. Oil is being imported from foreign countries to make up the difference, but our country cannot afford to become too dependent upon foreign oil for future economic growth. Additionally, our domestic gas production is insufficient to meet growing demands. The nationwide gas shortage has resulted in restrictions on the sale of gas in New York State and elsewhere in the country. The use of coal, our most abundant energy resource, is being limited by many factors, including higher costs, environmental requirements, and mine health and safety regulations. The construction and operation of nuclear power plants have been delayed by manufacturing, construction, labor, and environmental problems.

Overall, domestic energy production is just not keeping up with demand. That's why we're facing an energy crisis, and why we're at a turning point in solving our nation's energy problem. Next week we'll discuss some of the things which are being done to provide an adequate supply of clean energy for the future.

We'd like to remind you of the importance of energy conservation. We believe conserving the nation's energy—all forms of energy—is a good thing to do. Use energy wisely.

5-State Alarm For Escapees

NEW CITY, N.Y. (AP) — Three prisoners who fled from Rockland County Jail while bailing water from a water-pipe break on the second floor were being sought today by authorities in a five-state area.

Two other prisoners who escaped with them Sunday after volunteering for the bucket brigade were recaptured several hours later, still wearing prison dungarees, alongside Route 304 in Bardonia, three miles away.

Detectives out of sight of the seven-man mop-up detail discovered the jail break when the noise level suddenly dropped, according to Rockland County Sheriff Raymond A. Lindemann.

Returned to custody Sunday night were Buddy Davis, 22, of the Bronx, charged with robbery, and Joseph Freyermuth,

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 26, 1972

The history of our secret negotiations with Hanoi contains some painful lessons, which still seem to be disregarded in the quest for a Vietnam peace.

The agonizing details appear in the unpublished portions of the Pentagon Papers, which Daniel Ellsberg carefully withheld from the press.

President Nixon, however, has made public even more sensitive negotiations than are described in the suppressed papers. The Justice Department is also preparing to use these papers in its prosecution of Ellsberg. There appears to be no legitimate reason, therefore, for continuing the secrecy.

We have a copy of the unpublished Pentagon Papers, which give a chronological account of our diplomatic frustrations in seeking an end to the Vietnam War. Here are the lessons, which seemed to us to be the most compelling:

Lesson No. 1—Ex-President Lyndon Johnson orchestrated the bombing of North Vietnam in careful synchronization with the peace negotiations. He alternately suspended and escalated the bombing in an effort to influence the negotiations. Invariably, this seemed to produce the opposite effect in Hanoi than Johnson had intended. Yet President Nixon is now using the same strategy.

Lesson No. 2—The North Vietnamese, whether on the battlefield or at the peace table, never lost sight of their ultimate goal: control of all Vietnam. As the unpublished papers put it: "Who shall govern SVN is what the war is all about."

Lesson No. 3—With a patience unknown in the West, the Hanoi leaders are prepared to outwait and outlast all enemies. "We have been fighting for our independence for four thousand years," Premier Pham Van Dong told intermediaries who approached him in 1967 with a peace offer. "We have defeated the Mongols three times. The United States Army, strong as it is, is not as terrifying as Genghis Khan."

Lyndon Johnson's game of now-bomb-now-we-don't, according to the peace papers, repeatedly backfired.

An exchange of peace messages through the Poles, for example, ended abruptly with the bombing of Hanoi on December 13-14, 1966. Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin later reviewed with Secretary of State Dean Rusk why the contact had been broken off. "The bombing was just before that date," Dobrynin explained. Hanoi's response meaning "the U.S. thought it could pressure Hanoi to talk."

Yet the same scenario was repeated when the American embassy in Moscow tried to resume contact with the North Vietnamese. The exchanges continued throughout a Tet truce until the U.S. of Feb. 13, 1967, resumed the bombing of North Vietnam.

Suddenly the exchanges were cut off, and a conciliatory U.S. note to the North Vietnamese embassy in Moscow was returned marked "unacceptable."

The following June, the Norwegian ambassador to Peking, after a visit with the North Vietnamese Ambassador reported: "He said that formerly when North Vietnam showed an interest in negotiations, Americans had taken such interest as a sign of weakness with results of stronger escalation."

Henry Kissinger, meanwhile, got a dialogue going in Paris between two French intermediaries and North Vietnam's Mai Van Bo. But on August 21-22, 1967, President Johnson again dispatched his bombers to hit sensitive targets around Hanoi.

This ended the dialogue. "The bombing of Hanoi," said Bo, "at the same time as the sending of the August 21 (peace) message constitutes a pressure."

The papers quote a Soviet diplomat as saying the North Vietnamese regarded bombing of their homeland as an effort "to get Hanoi to talk." The refusal to talk while the bombs were dropping, he said, "was a direct response" to the U.S. position.

Nevertheless, President Nixon has now stepped up the bombing again as a means of wringing concessions out of the Hanoi leadership. But he, too, is finding the North Vietnamese fiercely stubborn. Their attitude is expressed in a secret quotation from Premier Pham Van Dong.

President Johnson is suffering from a pain, and this pain is called "South Vietnam," the North Vietnamese Premier told peace emissaries in 1967. "We agree that the situation on the battlefield is decisive; the game is being played in South Vietnam."

From the newspapers we see that some people want to confine the war to the South. However, the White House and the Pentagon seem determined to continue the war against the North. Therefore, we think that attacks on the North are likely to increase.

"We have made provisions for attacks on our dikes; we are ready to accept war on our soil. Our military potential is growing because of aid from the USSR and other Socialist countries. We fight only when we choose; we economize on our resources; we fight only for political purposes."

The lessons outlined in the unpublished Pentagon Papers should be studied carefully by those who still are seeking peace in Vietnam.

Lessons From Pentagon Papers

"The Other Boys Are Bullies!"

Martin Nolan Says

The Greening of Wilbur

ST. LOUIS.—The absolutely worst, most-fatiguing cliché of the year has been the "greening" of everything. Charles Reich's oatmeal prose has been thrown at every vague process of awakening or enlightenment, viz. the "greening of Xerox" or "the greening of Eddie Stanky," etc.

But the phrase is apt for the most extraordinarily verdant politicization going on right now, the greening of Wilbur Mills.

A veritable hermit in the marble domain of the House Ways and Means Committee for years, Mills this year decided to step down from his lofty perch and run for President. He then changed.

Here he was at a regional platform hearing, side by side with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, telling the world that he and Kennedy agreed on "broad general principles" of a national health insurance system. The man who opposed Medicare for so long during the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations was now saying "America has a responsibility to offer every American family the best in health care whenever they need it, regardless of income, where they live, or any other factor."

True, he and Kennedy still disagree on how to raise the money for the plan. Moreover, Mills is more reluctant to let private insurance companies suffer; Kennedy doesn't care. But the vaudevillian testimony of the two was quite a sight. The platform subcommittee chairman, ex-HEW Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen, twitched his eyebrows in amazement at the Wilbur Mills he saw before him.

Mills once shunned the world outside Washington. Now he is the Arkansas traveler and loving every step of the journey. He is undisciplined by his infatuation with the so far, and enjoys meeting all those folks whose lives he affects.

Not only has he liberalized his approach to health insurance, but Mills has changed his views on tax legislation. The former Lord of the Loopholes has decided to start from scratch after consulting with Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and remove all the preferences in the Internal Revenue Code for a specific reason.

"This is the most dramatic way I know to bring attention to them and to cause the people who enjoy the preferences to have to state their case again and to make their case again."

One can almost hear his love beads rattling mischievously as Mills foresees a swarm of lobbyists trying to peddle their wares in public. "You would have the Ways and Means Committee filled every day at its hearing," he says. "Hotel rooms in Washington would all be taken; we would be thriving economically in Washington because of the multitude of people who would come in an effort to justify the continuation of this or that preference."

More seriously, he adds of his tabula rasa approach: "If the bill I have introduced should be enacted, undoubtedly there would be tax reform."

Mills has already delivered on revenue-sharing, producing a bill more popular with beleaguered big cities than that offered by the Nixon Administration. And when the President proposed a five percent increase in Social Security—a dull subject except for people over 65—Mills promptly upped the ante to 20 per cent.

Politics and immersion in the political system, so widely suspect this year, has brought about this change in the computerlike mind of the chairman. What he once regarded as profligate and "out of the question," he now sees as real problems affecting his fellow Americans.

His "dream ticket" of Kennedy-Mills or Mills-Kennedy may have gone a glimmering, but no one should have cause for regret in the education of Wilbur D. Mills.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Two Thieves Named McNally

The rocks of misery were under the bridge. There was an elevator which descended slowly and silently from the road level of the Queensboro Bridge to Blackwell's Island. The place was a little over a mile long and it stood in the middle of the East River like an old ship that sunk.

The big stones were dirty gray. New York City imported them to grow a few trees. There were square ugly buildings on the south end, and some red-brick ones to the north. In a corner was an ancient Roman Catholic chapel with a spire and a cross and four stained-glass windows. The images on the windows were faint because no one washed them except God — He sent cold slanting rain.

I used to go there for human interest stories. At least that's what I called them. They were stories of despair. Those buildings on the south were a prison. There were high windows and cons sat behind the bars watching tugboats and rusty ramps steam by the island.

On the north side, the red-brick buildings were New York's Almshouse. If you were destitute, and knew a politician, you could get in. Lots of old people with shaky hands tried to get out, but most of them made it in a box.

As a reporter, I covered this beat for three years, in addition to other assignments. The prison warden was a good Tammany man but he didn't know how to steal. He sat in his office all day, a hipless man looking over the top of his spectacles, drumming his fingers on a green desk blotter.

The best system, he found, was to allow a cadre of convicts to run the place, sell the cigarettes and girls' magazines, and take whatever money they gave him. He didn't like me around his prison and he said so. I flipped my police card at him and he flipped it back. My main interest in the prison was a tubercular kid. He got three years for grand larceny, but he wouldn't go along with the system. He was about as big as a hungry jockey, but he fought them all in the yard and the judicial system added more time to his three years.

Jim McNally had a talent. Give him a paper bag and a pencil and he could write a synopsis for an O. Henry story with a zinger in the last line. I was earning $30 a week and I offered him $5 apiece for the story ideas. He said no. "Bring me a carton of cigarettes."

It wasn't good for his cough, but, neither was the damp cell. Jim McNally was in so much trouble that he couldn't get certified to the infirmary even when his prison uniform was red with blood. I asked him what he'd do if he ever got out. "Steal," he said laconically.

It never occurred to me to think of Jim when I interviewed Francis Xavier McNally. F. X. was the director of the Almshouse at the other end of the island. He and Mrs. McNally were too softhearted for the job. She used to take the elevator up to the bridge every morning to walk to Manhattan and buy knitting needles and pipe tobacco and other things for the poor.

Mack was a tall bald man with bleeding eyes. He used to go from bed to bed in the wards asking how the inmates felt, and if he could do anything to help them. When he wasn't doing that, he was in the old chapel saying his beads for the poor. I warned him he would crack up.

I saw old ladies who wore one white wool nightgown from one season to the next. The old men seldom shaved and they had snow-white Adam's apples. When I passed through, looking for stories, some glanced beseechingly and asked me to mail a letter to children who didn't want to read them.

When they burst into tears, I walked away. In time, the city editor took me off Blackwell's Island and the city renamed it Welfare. It was a good name because that's what the island lacked. Jim McNally was dead a week before I heard about it.

I went over and was told that he was in the icebox. If nobody claimed him, he would go to potter's field. I walked up to the grimy chapel and said a prayer for him. A few days later, Francis Xavier McNally shot himself.

The woe of the poor finally got him. I was in the D.A.'s office and they showed me an indictment. The McNallys for years had been coaxing the aged to sign over their tiny bank accounts "so when you need some little thing, Mrs. McNally can draw out the money and get it for you."

F. X. had over $200,000 that he had stolen from the poor. Jim didn't have a dime. The morning of the funeral mass, there was a mixup and both caskets arrived at the chapel at 10 a.m. The funeral director said: "Put F. X. in the church first. We don't want the newspapers to say he had to follow a thief..."

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Did you ever have this experience?

You wash the windows and venetian blinds spic and span, then have dingy, yellow tapes glaring at you?

Well, I tried liquid white shoe polish on them. You'll be happy with the results, Heloise.

Mrs. C. Smith

Then I pick up the ends of the cloth and old it over so the cabbage won't spill out.

I squeeze and squeeze that cloth with the cabbage inside until all the water is out.

Makes delicious crisp slaw and it stays nice.

And you don't have water in the bottom of the bowl after the slaw sits awhile.

MRS. L. C.

Dear Heloise:

Ever had your top-loading automatic washer shake and rattle to a stop trying to spin-dry one large, bulky article?

I discovered a solution that some of your readers might find very helpful!

After the wash cycle, lift the article up and center it over the top of the agitator post. It will spin all the water out without affecting the balance of the machine. Place the article down for the rinse cycles, then replace over the agitator for the last spin dry.

I found this terrific with things that must be washed alone, such as children's bulky jackets, heavy bath rugs or mats, blankets, and so on.

Record Attendance at Flower Show

A record number of persons attended the 48th Annual Standard Flower Show, presented by the Saugerties Society of Little Gardens at the United Methodist Church of Saugerties on Wed. June 14, under the direction of Mrs. Hugo Knauert, show chairman, and Mrs. Frank Greco, co-chairman.

The show theme, "A Treasury of Thoughts in Bloom," was in evidence everywhere, with bits of prose greeting the viewers at the entrance and throughout the exhibits.

As has become the custom with the Saugerties club, the Boutique offered many fine plants and articles; the Education and Conservation exhibit on drying and preserving plant material was most informative; and the refreshment table was laden with delicious punch and cookies.

The Junior Achievement Award (best of Junior Classes one-four) was won by Carolyn Rittie for her dried artistic arrangements.

The Tri-color Award (best of Artistic Classes 24, 29, 30) was received by Mrs. Frank Greco for her arrangement of Roses.

Mrs. Hugo Knauert won the Creativity Award (best of Artistic Classes 23, 27, 31) for her dried arrangement.

The Award of Merit (best of all Horticulture Division) was won by Mrs. Robert H. Finger, for her Peace Rose.

Saratoga Festival Juilliard Acting Company

INAUGURAL SEASON

JULY 3 TO JULY 8

"SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL"

In New York and on tour, the Juilliard production of Richard Sheridan's hilarious comedy of manners has become the hallmark of America's most exciting new theater company. This production, beautiful to look at, is brimful of laughter from beginning to end.

JULY 17 TO JULY 22

"WOMEN BEWARE WOMEN"

Unexpectedly, Thomas Middleton's Jacobean drama, "as ancient as Revenge, as modern as Black Comedy," was the smash-hit of the Juilliard Acting Company's initial New York season. Lust is the pivot of the plot; lust of the flesh, lust for gold, lust after power. Here is a spell-binding combination of gripping melodrama and grotesque farce.

JULY 9, 16 & 23
"U.S.A."

Said the New York Times:

"Anyone worried about the future of the American theater should see the new Juilliard Acting Company in action... The pleasure of spending four evenings with this company, is that its members, as they change characters, clothes, faces and styles, grow individually and collectively before one's eyes."

Saratoga Performing Arts Center
Saratoga Springs, N.Y. 12866

JULY 10 TO JULY 15

"RING AROUND THE MOON"

France's foremost playwright, Jean Anouilh, calls his play "a charade with music." The sparkling text, translated by Christopher Fry, is partnered by a scintillating musical accompaniment. Both might have been planned for summertime in Saratoga, where the present lighter-than-air production is being premiered.

JULY 24 TO JULY 29

"THE HOSTAGE"

Current Irish events give Brendan Behan's raucous study of life in a Dublin brothel, vintage 1958, even deeper impact in 1972. Careless in the teeth of danger, moving in the midst of meriment, the characters take on new dimensions today. Numerous songs add to the atmosphere of an indelible piece of theater, at once innocent and cynical, tragical and comical.

The Kingston City Recreation Department will hold its sixth annual Children's Day Parade on Wednesday, July 26.

"This means that the worst rain storm of the summer will occur on July 26," said Recreation Superintendent Andrew J. Murphy III. "For the past two summers, the worst rain storm of the year occurred on the scheduled date of the parade," he stated.

This year's parade is expected to be even bigger than the 10th division parade of 1971, according to Ron Gabriele, the department's activities director. The official theme will be decided at the Recreation Department's training institute on June 28.

While children are still the main theme of the parade, many items have been added through the years and Recreation Department officials are working on more new ideas for this year's parade, Gabriele said.

At Poughkeepsie Dedication

Lindsay Shows Humorous Side

POUGHKEEPSIE ago on the back of a sound truck on a day like this," he said. "Some guy hollered out that Lindsay drinks and gambles and runs all over town. Send him down to city hall, and other guy yelled, 'we won't have to break him in.' On another occasion, Lindsay recalled presiding at a neighborhood meeting when a man (who obviously had a quart of scotch in his belly) kept yelling 'Lindsay is a bum.' 'Well, I took it as long as I could,' Lindsay said. 'After all, I was trying to do a good job.' 'Sir, you are drunk,' Lindsay recalled saying to his antagonist. 'I'll be sober in the morning,' the man replied, 'and you'll still be a bum.' Then Lindsay was pointing out just how big an operation the city of New York is. 'We have the second largest government operation in the country,' he said. 'Our budget is even bigger than New York State's. It's bigger than any other state in the union.' 'For awhile though, we almost lost our standing, California passed a bigger budget than we did. But with a stroke of the pen I appropriated another $300 million, thus saving our civic pride and maintaining Gov. Regan's reputation as an economist.' And finally, Lindsay told the story about the time he had the flu. 'The City Council adopted a resolution wishing me good health,' the mayor quipped. 'The vote was 17-15.' Most of the public officials who spoke, praised the city for its teamwork with federal and state governments in bringing the Poughkeepsie city hall complex to fruition. Congressman John Dow (D-27th) spoke along much the same lines but also got in a few cryptic remarks about reappointment by the State Legislature. Dow, who lives in Orange County, was reappointed into Poughkeepsie two years ago and reappointed out again this year. He made it quite clear he didn't like it.

BOCES Seeks Federal Aid To Start 5 New Programs

NEW PALTZ The Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services will seek federal funding for five projects as a result of action taken at a recent board meeting. The projects include a pre-vocational program with a remedial education teacher; placement and follow-up counselor for a study of making career information available to children in the years; teacher training in early grades so that they may plan ahead in curriculum and employment goals. The placement and follow-up program is designed to assist BOCES in future additions or revisions to the overall offerings. Dr. Jack L. Roosa, BOCES executive officer, reported to the board on the decision of the Ulster County College Committee of the county legislature revealed at the June 6 meeting of the college and BOCES representatives. Plans for BOCES expansion on shared facilities at the community college were called off at that time. It was decided to explore other avenues of meeting the needs for expansion in the BOCES vocational education and special education facilities. For the present, the fall program is slated to continue in rented and scattered facilities as in previous years. Four permanent teacher appointments were made by the board. Receiving appointments were Vincent Bitonte, Frank Parkes, Leo Rozman and Hans Weber, all in the vocational education division. The resignations of Linda Corrado as part time art teacher and Gerrit Church as special education teacher were accepted.

Battle Still Rages On Rosendale Chief

ROSENDALE anticipated more charges being filed against us. If Grassi were to be believed, Trustees Ritter and myself should have been in Albany Friday morning, when in fact the State Supreme Court did not even have a special term scheduled for that," she continued. And she added that neither Ritter nor herself has been served with legal notice "in any shape or form concerning any future court action, nor has the village attorney." In "calling his bluff," Mrs. DeStefano remarked, "If he has grounds for a suit, let him take it to court; if he hasn't, I hope he will have the good sense to stop behaving like an immature child who, if he can't pitch, will not play on the team." She said the police were working, were being paid, and are being well-received by the residents of the village. "Last week Mayor Grassi told The Freeman that his attorney and the village attorney have 'mutually agreed' to a one week adjournment on the show cause order served on Trustees Ritter and myself," she said. "He further stated that he approval was granted for board members and the superintendent to attend the annual conference on New York State Education Law to be held at State University, at New Paltz, Aug. 3. The reorganizational meeting of Ulster County BOCES was set July 6.

Area Census Slated

KINGSTON

A survey of day-to-day expenditures of Ulster County families will be taken shortly by the United States Department of Commerce, it was announced.

Mrs. Doris Riddick and Mrs. Annette Leyden will conduct the census which is also being undertaken simultaneously in Westchester County and in the Bronx and Manhattan.

Selected households will be asked to keep a daily record of expenditures for two weeks. Called a Diary Survey, it is part of the Consumer Expenditure Program.

The federal government is interested in finding out about today's buying habits, in order to update the consumer price index which measures monthly price changes.

Census interviewers will visit households to explain the survey and to leave a printed form for the recording of purchases for a seven-day period. The interviewer will pick up the form at the end of the first week and leave another form for the second week which will be picked up at the end of that week. The survey will continue into next year with only a few households in the survey during each week.

Each interviewer carries a red, white and blue identification card bearing his or her signature and photograph and each has been sworn to the Census Bureau's oath of confidentiality. All information reported remains in strictest confidence.

PAUL TREANOR

Mary Ann Fischler, director of the YWCA, where the Council holds its monthly luncheon meetings, will continue to serve as corresponding secretary.

Treanor, who also conducts a private practice as a psychotherapist, said he would appoint a program committee as soon as possible to plan a schedule of speakers for the coming year.

The Council of Social Agencies serves as a clearing house for problems and information concerning the health and welfare of Ulster County residents, and agencies dealing in these areas are invited to join.

Carlton Guided by That Other Set of Rules

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

The official baseball rulebook is quite specific. Under Rule No. 8.02, Paragraph C, it states: "The pitcher shall not intentionally pitch at the batter."

But on the field in the heat of competition, the players follow a different set of rules.

"The Expos have to realize that every pitcher is going to come back and get their man, those are the rules of the game," Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies said Sunday after he beamed Montreal's Tim Lincecum to ignite a wild brawl.

"Foli has to realize I was trying to hit him in the ribs but, unfortunately, he got his head in the way. Of course, I would never try to throw at anybody's head."

Evening the Score
Carlton felt he was just evening the score because Ernie McAnally of the Expos hit Joe Lis. But when Carlton beamed Foli in the fourth inning, Montreal manager Gene Mauch led a charge to the mound. Mauch, who suffered some scrapes and cuts on his face before the fracas was brought under control, was tossed out of the game. Foli was taken to a hospital for X-rays but they proved negative.

Carlton stayed in the game and pitched a four-hitter to give the Phillies a 1-0 victory over the Expos. When Carlton came up to the plate in the fifth inning, McAnally tried to even the score again but this time he was banished for throwing at Carlton.

Carlton didn't throw at any other hitters and managed to pitch a shutout, getting the win on the strength of John Bateman's homer.

The fracas overshadowed some of the pennant race action in the National League as Pittsburgh took command of the NL East race while the West remained a scramble as Cincinnati and Houston split their four-game series and Los Angeles kept in hot pursuit. In the other scores, Pittsburgh downed Chicago, 9-2, Cincinnati edged Houston, 5-4, in 10 innings, Los Angeles blanked Atlanta, 5-0, St. Louis topped New York twice, 7-1 and 2-1 and San Francisco downed San Diego, 6-5, in 14 innings.

Manny Sanguillen's grand slam homer in the eighth inning lifted Pittsburgh to the victory over Chicago and dropped the third place Cubs five games behind the Pirates. The two New York losses to St. Louis left the second place Mets three games behind the world champions.

The Cincinnati-Houston series was a standoff as the clubs split four games. The Reds won the final game to get the split when Denis Menke, who homered in the fourth inning, drove in the deciding run in the 10th with a double. The win moved the Reds back into a one-half game lead over the Astros.

The Dodgers, in third place three games behind the Reds, topped the Braves as Tommy John and Pete Mikkelsen combined on a seven-hitter. Bill Russell and Chris Cannizzaro both drove in two runs for the Dodgers.

Garry Maddox scored from second on an infield out in the 10th as the Giants downed the Padres. Maddox doubled and rounded third as Ed Goodson grounded out. He kept right on coming and rammed into catcher Pat Corrales as the throw from Nate Colbert squirted away from him.

WAR ZONES — An umpire tries to prevent an enraged Gene Mauch, manager of the Montreal Expos, from attacking Philadelphia Phillies catcher John Bateman at the outset of a free-for-all at Jarry Park Sunday. Mauch was later banished from the game in a beanball battle. (UPI)

Spinks, Wise Listen When Oldies Talk

NEW YORK (AP) — When Bob Gibson and Joe Torre talk, Scipio Spinks and Rich Wise listen.

Spinks, who hadn't won a baseball game since May 19, fired a six-hitter and struck out 13 as the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the New York Mets 7-1 Sunday in the opener of a doubleheader. Later, he related a chat about pitching he had with Gibson, the Cards' ace.

"Gibby said he sets the hitters up with a slider and tries to get them out with a fast ball," Spinks said. "I decided to try and set them up with a curve and get them with my fast ball. It was the first time I've tried this pattern."

Then Wise went out and won the nightcap 2-1 on a four-hitter. Ted Simmons scoring the winning run from third base with two out in the ninth inning on ex-Met Donn Clendenon's pinch infield hit.

Wise, who walked Ed Kranepool and Wayne Garrett with two runners on base in the fourth inning to force in the Mets' only run, walked Dave Marshall to open the bottom of the ninth. That's when third baseman Torre took over.

"Joe came in and said to really go to them," Wise said.

"So I went to my fast ball and I prevailed."

"I pride myself on my control and I was disappointed in the fact that I walked those two men in the fourth. In the ninth, it was imperative that I get the first hitter, but fortunately the walk to Marshall didn't hurt me."

"I got the first strike on Marshall and everyone in the dugout was yelling for me to get the leadoff hitter. It was foremost in my mind. Maybe I was trying a little too hard and in an effort to get something on the ball I was overstriding."

"Unconsciously, the more a pitcher tried to throw strikes, the more he starts to press," said catcher Simmons. "Consequently, he loses his rhythm and it takes him two or three batters to get back in the groove. That's what happened to Rick. He had a little trouble and all of a sudden he snapped out of it."

Simmons doubled to open the ninth against reliever Danny Friesella and took third on Jose Cruz's sacrifice. He remained there while Bernie Carbo, whose fifth-inning homer tied the score, struck out, but scooted home on Clendenon's slow hopper down the third base line.

The Mets have dropped three in a row and 12 of their last 17 starts and trail Pittsburgh by three games in the National League East. The fourth place Cardinals have won five straight but still are 10½ games out.

"We had a horrendous start," said Wise, "but now we're coming around pitching and hitting wise."

"I'm doing everything I can to try to get some hitting in the line-up," moaned Mets' manager Yogi Berra, "but nothing seems to work."

Hitless Wonders Share AL Tie

By BOB DI PIETRO
UPI Sports Writer

The struggling Detroit Tigers and Baltimore Orioles, have non-hit their way into a first-place deadlock in the American League East. Both teams have mediocre 33-26 marks in a division in which they are the only clubs with winning records.

The Orioles have been making contact with the ball at a .219 clip while Detroit is hitting .229.

The two teams played Sunday and the game was of all things—a pitcher's duel. Jim Palmer beat Tom Timmerman, 2-1, and the Birds had a slice of the lead.

In other games in the American League, Cleveland tripped New York twice, 4-3, 5-1, before losing to the Brewers, 2-0. Oakland dealt a double dose to California, 6-1 and 6-0. Chicago whacked Texas, 10-5, and Minnesota split a doubleheader with Kansas City. The Twins won, 5-3, before losing 8-3.

For Palmer, unbeaten since May 11, the win was his eighth in a row and raised his record to 10-3. He scattered seven hits, including Gates Brown's fourth home run of the season.

Terry Crowley drove in one Oriole run with a first-inning single and scored the other in the sixth when his double preceded Brooks Robinson's single.

Gaylord Perry became the first pitcher in the majors to record 12 wins when the relief ace Ken Sanders racked slam home run as the White Sox salvaged the final game of their three-game set with the Rangers in 105-degree heat at Arlington.

Outfielder Billy Conigliaro left the Brewers prior to the start of the doubleheader, packing his personal gear and departing without explanation. Jim Hunter, 8-3, pitched a three-hitter in the opener and third baseman Mike Ferraro booted Janny Cater's grounder to lead the way to two unearned runs in the fourth inning as Boston took the first game. But Earl Stephenson yielded six hits over seven innings in his first major league start in the nightcap and Outfielder Billy Conigliaro left the Brewers prior to the start of the doubleheader, packing his personal gear and departing without explanation.

Jim Hunter, 8-3, pitched a three-hitter in the opener and third baseman Mike Ferraro booted Janny Cater's grounder to lead the way to two unearned runs in the fourth inning as Boston took the first game. But Earl Stephenson yielded six hits over seven innings in his first major league start in the nightcap and run fourth inning with a grand-slam home run as the White Sox salvaged the final game of their three-game set with the Rangers in 105-degree heat at Arlington.

A three-run double by Lou Piniella and a three-run home run by John Mayberry triggered a seven-run fifth inning that buried Minnesota in the nightcap.

Yanks Swept

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Superb pitching by Gaylord Perry and Mike Kilkenny gave the Cleveland Indians a 4-3, 5-1 sweep of Sunday's doubleheader with the New York Yankees and into a tie for third place in the American League East.

The Indians and Yankees are both 26-31 after the "Bat Day" doubleheader, which drew 23,196 fans. Boston, a game behind in fourth place, opens a two-game series here tonight while the Yankees travel to Detroit.

"As far as I'm concerned, Kilkenny and Perry are the only for-sure starters we've got," said manager Ken Aspromonte after Perry hiked his record to 12-6 in the opener and Kilkenny (1-0) tossed a five-hitter in the nightcap in his starting debut.

Kilkenny was acquired by the Indians just before the trading deadline. He had started the season with Detroit, been traded to Oakland and swapped to San Diego in earlier trades this season.

"I tried to tell 'em in Detroit and in Oakland and in San Diego that I could pitch if they'd just give me the chance," said Kilkenny, who had been sought because of a shortage of left handers on the pitching staff. "But I never got the chance anywhere but here."

"It's gratifying to know there are people from those three other clubs who will read the paper and think maybe they were wrong about me."

Kilkenny was helped along by four New York errors, and Aspromonte said lineup changes to meet the southpaw hurler might have had something to do with the way they played in the field.

"That's why I wanted so desperately to have a left-handed starter," said Aspromonte. "That's why a left-hander was so important to me. Now, we've got one."

Jerry Moses singled home two runs in a three-run first inning to provide Kilkenny with all the cushion he needed.

Kilkenny, who gave up a run in the third on Bobby Mercer's bases-loaded infield hit, issued only four walks in the game.

Perry became the majors' first 12-game winner this season when the Indians exploded for three runs in the eighth inning to break a 1-1 deadlock.

Nat Fleischer Is Dead at 84

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nat Fleischer, known throughout the world as "Mr. Boxing," is dead.

The founder of Ring Magazine died Sunday night of a heart ailment at age 84 at New York University Hospital.

Fleischer, who succeeded in a large degree to putting an order to boxing records which were all but haphazard before he started compiling them, helped to found Ring Magazine in 1922 and he was still the editor of the publication when he died a half century later and he lived to see the magazine celebrate its 50th anniversary.

The magazine was known as the bible of the business and the monthly ratings it issued for fighters in all classes were accepted by most fans around the world.

"Possibly an even larger accomplishment was the founding 29 years ago of The Ring Record Book and Boxing Encyclopedia. The 1972 edition ran 808 pages and it is the source book for most boxing records."

As a student at City College of New York, he captained the basketball team and became a sports writer. He helped found Ring Magazine and devoted all his efforts to the publication from 1929 when the New York Telegram was combined with the New York World and he lost his newspaper job.

Fleischer was a prolific writer who usually wrote several articles for each issue of the magazine and also found

It's Center Court For Stan Smith

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., draws the honor of opening play on the center court at Wimbledon today, a solid favorite to roll over the depleted mens field to his first singles title.

Traditionally the defending champion, John Newcombe of Australia, opens the two weeks of play at the world's premier tennis tournament. But with Newcombe and 31 other pros barred this year, Smith takes the center court as losing finalist in 1971 to play West German Hans Plotz in the first match.

In the four years from 1968 when Wimbledon was completely open, Smith, 25, is the only man competing this year who ever reached the final.

"It won't worry me if the critics say it was a substandard Wimbledon," he said. "Just as long as I win."

Seeded number one and an 11-10 bookmaker's favorite, Smith should have an easy ride as far as the quarter-finals, where he should face eighth-seeded Russian Alex Metreveli.

Several men who with a chance of beating him, including Clark Graebner of New York, Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., and veterans Pancho Gonzales of Las Vegas and Australian Lew Hoad, are in the other half of the draw.

No. 2 seed Ilie Nastase of Romania, regarded as more at home on clay than on the grass courts at Wimbledon, has a tough draw with Graebner as a likely second round opponent.

Gorman and seventh-seeded South African Bob Hewitt are also in his quarter-final.

Hewitt's first match is against 19-year-old Jim Connors of Belleville, Ill., who won the London Championship singles title at Queens Club on Saturday.

A much more even contest is in prospect for the women's title, with defending champion Evonne Goolagong of Australia, second-seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and 17-year-old Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., all in the running.

Mrs. King's experience and her three previous titles (1966-67-68) have made her a solid 11-8 favorite with the bookies. But with Miss Evert, seeded fourth, riding high after her win at Queens Club Saturday, she is given a 5-1 chance of taking the title on her first try.

Experts are already looking forward to the likely Evert-Goolagong semi-final as the match of the tournament.

Miss Goolagong has a first-round bye and shouldn't be hard pressed until the last eight, where she is likely to meet eighth-seeded Francoise Durr of France.

Miss Evert gets her start on Tuesday against Val Ziegenfuss of San Diego, Calif. Fortunately for her third seed Nancy Gunter of San Angelo, Tex., who hasn't lost a set in her matches against Miss Evert this year, is in the other half of the draw.

Mrs. King should be clear until she faces seventh seed Virginia Wade of Britain in her quarter-final.

McFee Raps 636

Fred McFee slammed 636 high series with games of 224, 219 in the Thursday Mixed Foursome. Runners up was Wendy Knight with 219, 203-574. In another session, Bob Blume Sr. set the pace with 236-593 and Fred McFee posted 201-212-590.

Imperial Raps 563

In the Wednesday Night Mix, Rheta Sheeley, 190-507, and Andy Imperiali 209-563 were top scorers. R. Corning Johnston Construction paced team shooting with 686-1946.

CLOWING AROUND — Brigitte Sam and Bobo the Clown are a couple of the colorful characters who will be on center stage when the Kingston Braves host the famed touring team, the Indianapolis Clowns, Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. at Dietz Stadium. The game was originally scheduled for Saturday night but postponed because of rain.

Texans Agree First Still Beats Second

CAPE CORAL, Fla. (AP) —

The 1972 NCAA Golf Championship is in the hands of two University of Texas teammates, and neither is particularly happy about it.

"Tying is like kissing your sister," said senior Tom Kite after he had seen sole possession of the title pulled from his grasp when defending champion Ben Crenshaw canned a 25-foot putt on the final hole Saturday.

"No," said sophomore Crenshaw, "it's like kissing your brother."

"All I can say for being co-champion," added Kite, "is that it beats finishing second. I think the NCAA should think about changing its rule to provide a clear-cut winner."

Up until this year there had never been a need for a play-off. The first 75 championships ended simply with one winner.

Going into Saturday's fourth round at Cape Coral Country Club, Crenshaw had a four-stroke lead. But he slipped to 38, and with nine holes to go it became a four-way deadlock between Crenshaw, Kite, Howard Twitty of Arizona State and Bill Rogers of Houston.

Kite closed out the day with a 4-under-par 68. Twitty wound up at 72 and Rogers came in at 75.

That left the 22-year-old Kite waiting and wondering at the 18th hole, and Crenshaw needed a par on that one to tie.

The 20-year-old Crenshaw hooked his drive to the edge of the rough, sent his second shot about 60 feet wide of the green and chipped 25 feet beyond the cup before sinking the pressure putt.

That gave the Texans a 9-under-par 279 total. Twitty was third with 282, while Rogers tied teammate Art Russell for fourth with 285.

The Longhorns also retained the team title as their four entries turned in a 72-hole total of 1,146. Houston was second, 13 strokes back.

Rain Checks 50-Lap Pocono

MIDDLETOWN

Rain halted the 50-lap Pocono Qualifier after nine laps were completed at the Orange County Fair Speedway Saturday night. Will Gagle, a five-time track champion, will retain his lead when the heavy modified race is continued on July 8.

In the only other feature race presented, the held over, Semilate model event, Loren Holland of White Lake, N.Y., was a narrow winner over Clarence Hill of Sussex, Holland, the former modified star drove a smart race on a tacky track and moved into the lead late into the race.

In other changes next week the first race at 6:30 p.m. will be the features for the Limited Sportsmen and the Late Models.

Shirley Sends Real Warning

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — A 15-year-old challenger has sent a warning down under to Shane Gould, Australia's wonder of the swimming world.

"I think we're catching up real fast," said Shirley Babashoff Sunday after winning her third event in the Santa Clara International Swimming Meet.

"But she'll get better too," the high school girl from Fountain Valley, Calif., added. "We don't expect her to stand still."

Miss Gould, also 15, is the dominant figure in the sport, the world record holder at all four women's free-style distances. She made her only U.S. appearance to date in last year's Santa Clara meet, sweeping the freestyles and setting a world mark of 4:21.2 for 400 meters.

But Miss Babashoff backed up her warning with a 9:01.5 best time in the world this year, to win the 800 freestyle Sunday. Earlier in the three-day meet, she won the 200 and 100 frees.

Jenny Wylie, a 14-year-old member of the Santa Clara Swim Club, won the 400 freestyle Friday with a time just 2.7 seconds off the year-old world record.

Gary Hall, the Indiana University star, was the only other triple winner in the meet. He took the 200 individual medley Sunday in 2:10.4, also a world best for 1972, after earlier winning the 400 freestyle and 400 medley.

Hall, an Olympic veteran, and other members of Indiana's NCAA championship team, are spread around the country in training this summer. But in a reunion here, they won eight of the 12 men's events, with Sullivan Award winner Mark Spitz taking two titles.

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Years back, if somebody like Cheri Caffaro came along there'd be so much hullabaloo you'd think it was the second coming. Hollywood was like that, but no more. Now she's just another pretty, ambitious young thing.

It's kind of a shame that the old days are gone. It would have been fun to see what Hollywood's drum beaters would have done with—and for—Cheri. They might have called her The Blonde Goddess of Zowie or something. As it is she'll have to struggle along on her own.

And her own is pretty good. She's tall and beautiful and a well-trained (Pasadena Playhouse) actress. And experienced—she has been acting since she was a child here.

She went through a strange problem. Most girls have an awkward age. Hers was an unusual awkward age—she never had one. At 14, she says, she was tall and mature and she never looked like a teen-ager. Casting directors wouldn't cast her as a teen-ager—she looked too old—and wouldn't cast her as a grownup, because they could use real grownups who didn't require teachers on the set.

So she quit the business and spent the next few years getting an education and the added years she needed. Now she's back and doing well.

She has starred in two low budget films—"Ginger" and "The Abductors"—playing a kind of female James Bond. And now she has the lead in "A Place Called Today," which she says is her best part so far.

But just in case things don't work out she has another iron in the fire. She and a friend have a booming boutique in Beverly Hills. She's a good businesswoman. That's another thing that's changed in Hollywood—in the old days, the glamor gals had problems counting much beyond six.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

PERSISTENT: (Q.) Ever since I started dating this boy he has tried stuff on me. I won't let him touch me but he keeps on trying.

He says he loves me and I guess he does. But sometimes I think it's going to be a mistake marrying him.

We have been going together two months. I am 15 and he is 20 and we are supposed to get married some time next year. I love him—Virgin in Indiana.

(A.) Two months is a pretty short time to try. Many boys try longer.

Two months is a very short time in which to decide on marriage, which you seem to have done.

There are too many long years between 15 and 20 to make a good dating arrangement.

Sixteen, which you will be a year from now, is too young to get married.

Think about these figures. You may love your boy friend now and he may love you now, but a lifetime is usually much longer than two months.

CLOTHES CRY: (Q.) My clothes look so bad on me. Not that I'm fat or have broad shoulders. I'm just a regular kid with a stupid-looking wardrobe. Part of the reason is my mother. She buys my clothes at cheap stores. She doesn't think they look bad, but they do.—13 in Maryland.

(A.) I do not think it is so much low-priced clothes as wrong ones; plus a lack of communication between you and your mother.

Talk to her. Make a list of things you need. Ask her to decide the store and the price but to let you find the kind of clothes that your friends wear and that you like.

Millions of American teen-agers look good in low-priced clothes that are well chosen with teen-age tastes in mind.

U.S. Planes Bomb Steel Mill

SAIGON (UPI)—Twenty U.S. F4 Phantom fighter-bombers streaked to within sight of Hanoi and bombed North Vietnam's only modern steel mill, the U.S. command said Sunday.

An official communique from the U.S. command said the Phantoms battered the two-square-mile Thai Nguyen steel works 30 miles north of Hanoi Saturday with 2,000-pound laser-guided "Smart" bombs, knocking out numerous warehouses and the plant's open hearth furnaces for making steel. The mill turns out mainly mortars and spare parts for vehicles.

In the ground war, Communist gunners fired six rockets into South Vietnam's largest army training center on the outskirts of Saigon Sunday night, injuring a government soldier and a civilian, the Saigon command said.

A command spokesman said five of the 100-pound, Russia-made 122mm rockets landed in open fields inside the Quang Trung Training Center seven miles west of Saigon on the edge of the huge Tan Son Nhut Air Base. The sixth hit the hamlet of Ap Chanh on the edge of the complex, wounding the soldier and the civilian.

The Vietnam News Agency (VNA) monitored in Tokyo said today four Phantom jets were shot down Sunday over North Vietnam and another F4 was downed Saturday. The report said the crew of the plane shot down Saturday was captured but made no mention of the crewmen in Sunday's action. VNA claimed 3,686 U.S. warplanes have been shot down over the North in the war.

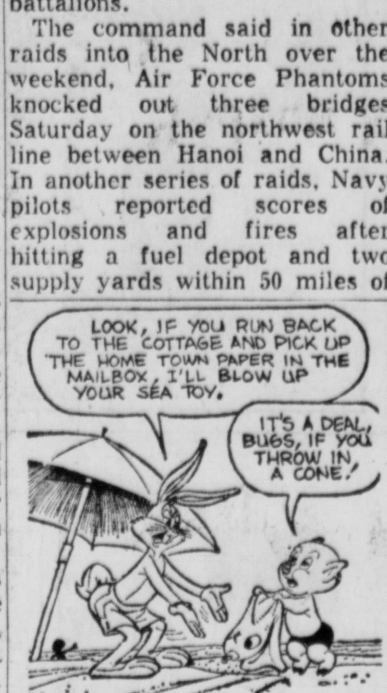

The U.S. command in Saigon, meanwhile, announced organizational restructuring of U. S. forces in Indochina aimed at reducing the command's status to more of an advisory role as American involvement in the war winds down. Military sources said planning of U.S. bombing raids in the war would be coordinated by the command in Saigon rather than at 7th Air Force headquarters at the Tan Son Nhut Air Base.

At the same time, the sources announced the end of the combat-oriented U.S. Army, Vietnam (USARV), and said it would be replaced by a U.S.

Army Support Command (USA-SUPCOM), basically a supply and maintenance headquarters. By the end of the month, plans call for only one U.S. combat infantry battalion of about 500 men in South Vietnam, compared to a 1968 total of 112 battalions.

The command said in other raids into the North over the weekend, Air Force Phantoms knocked out three bridges Saturday on the northwest rail line between Hanoi and China. In another series of raids, Navy pilots reported scores of explosions and fires after hitting a fuel depot and two supply yards within 50 miles of the North Vietnamese capital.

In other ground action, Communist troops knocked out 37 vehicles in a 100-truck convoy carrying fuel today along Highway 19, 240 miles northeast of Saigon in the out of the area.

House Debates Weapons Development Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's bid for increased weapons development under the U.S.-Soviet arms accord heads into House debate with opponents proposing a $1.6-billion cutback.

But although their amendments promised Congress' first debate on U.S. arms policy under the Moscow arms-limitation agreements, Nixon's House opponents did not expect to win any cuts in the arguments today or in voting Tuesday and Wednesday.

The amendments would cut all or most of the President's requests for the new guided-missile submarine, advanced B1 bomber and antimissile systems from the $21.3-billion weapons authorization bill before the House.

"Do we build up to the limit of the agreements?" asked Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., in a report on some of the proposed cuts, "or do we take the President and Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev at their words that they agree the arms race should stop?"

But Nixon and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told Congress last week its rejection of the new weapons would jeopardize U.S. security and destroy Soviet incentive for negotiating a fuller arms curb.

Nixon said Soviet incentive to negotiate a permanent limit on all nuclear weapons would be totally destroyed by U.S. failure to keep up with Soviet arms improvements permitted under the five-year interim agreement signed in Moscow.

Laird told senators he hopes the Trident submarine, B1 bomber and other new systems—after giving the Soviets incentive to renegotiate a permanent offensive-weapons curb—could be among the weapons bargained away or limited.

The $21.3-billion weapons bill already has been cut a net

$582.4 million as a result of the Moscow accords, with a $692.4-million cut from the Safeguard antimissile system offset with a $110-million increase for offensive-weapons systems other than the Trident and B1 bomber.

Leggett's amendments would cut Nixon's $977-million request for Trident to $277 million to return it to last year's development schedule; cut Safeguard another $350 million, leaving $186 million research-and-development money for it; and cut all $140 million for a tighter radar defense around U.S. missile fields.

Escalation by IRA Before Cease-Fire

BELFAST (UPI)—Irish Republican Army (IRA) militants escalated their attacks today, giving a final show of power before putting aside their arms for a cease-fire that could be an important step toward peace in Northern Ireland.

The cease-fire goes into effect at midnight (7 p.m. EDT).

Both branches of the IRA and the British army have agreed to observe the truce. However, IRA sources said the militant Provisional wing of the IRA was going all-out in the final hours before the cease-fire, presumably to show they were not forced to observe it because of weakness.

Six persons were killed in a weekend of violence, including three British soldiers whose Landrover touched off a mine. A 17-year-old Roman Catholic youth was shot from a passing auto in Belfast Saturday, and two men were killed in Belfast shooting incidents Sunday.

In all, 389 persons have been killed in the three years of Ulster violence.

IRA sources said the Provi-sionals, after going all-out in the final hours before the truce, would strictly enforce the cease-fire once it was in effect. They said Belfast IRA commander Seamus Twomey told militants who oppose the cease-fire the Provisionals would join with the IRA's Official wing in punishing those who did not observe it.

At the same time, the Provisionals warned Catholics to be prepared for attacks from militant Protestant groups after the ceasefire begins. Leaflets distributed in the Catholic Ardoyne area urged residents to stock up on canned food and milk and in an emergency do whatever their local IRA commander ordered.

A series of bombs went off early today, including one massive blast on a bridge of the main railway line leading north from Belfast. Although the bomb was so big it could be heard 16 miles away, it did not damage the line.

Palestinian Guerrillas Battle Israeli Gunboats

By United Press International

Palestinian guerrillas today reported their third battle in 48 hours with Israeli gunboats off the coast of southern Lebanon and Israeli gunners dueling with Syrians on the Golan Heights.

Military sources in Tel Aviv said a number of shells were fired from Syrian territory at Israeli army positions on the Golan Heights early today and "the fire was returned at the sources of the attack."

In Beirut, the An Nahar newspaper reported today that Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon have agreed to suspend operations against Israel. There was no confirmation from the guerrillas, who have been the object of a number of Israeli "retaliatory" attacks.

Guerrilla sources in Beirut said four Israeli boats approached the Rashidieh refugee camp near Tyre, 50 miles south of Beirut, late Sunday night. The guerrillas opened fire with machine guns and the Israeli boats withdrew, firing as they went, the sources said.

Earlier, the guerrillas reported they fought an hour-long rocket and machine gun battle with Israeli patrol boats and helicopters off Israel's northern coast, but both Israel and Lebanon denied the report.

The first sea battle came

Saturday morning when Israeli and guerrilla boats clashed in the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Lebanon. Both the guerrillas and Israelis claimed they damaged the other's craft.

In light of the flare-up in the Middle East, the United Nations Security Council was meeting in New York for the third time to discuss the situation and pass a resolution.

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is "making intensified efforts" to make certain Palestinian guerrillas are not thrown out of Lebanon.

The paper said, "The president held urgent contacts in that connection after reports from Beirut indicated that the position of the resistance in Lebanon has become very critical as a result of heavy pressures by the Lebanese government to get the guerrillas out of Lebanon."

In Jerusalem, Israeli Deputy

Prime Minister Yigal Allon in a speech Sunday urged villagers in southern Lebanon to demand their government remove Arab guerrillas camped in the area.

"If the residents of southern Lebanon want to live in peace—as we wish for them to do—they must push their weight and demand that the Beirut authorities remove the terrorists from their midst, and then we shall not have to open fire."
